

NOW WHAT DO I DO?

R. Sue McPherson PhD, University of Texas School of Public Health, Houston TX

This discussion integrated together the ideas presented by the previous speakers and focused the new users on how to utilize this information at this conference. A self-assessment of nutrient data base needs was discussed and given to each participant. Communication strategies for linking with experts in the nutrient data base field as well as with other nutrient data base users was reviewed. The discussion closed with guidelines for the homework that each user can do to complete their self-assessment and to make decisions about the selection and use of nutrient data bases.